This golf course was designed in the typical Walloon-Brabant countryside. The undulating fairways are quite wide but offer little protection against the wind.

The top-quality greens, designed in 1988 by Frédéric Theys, relies on the diversity of the courses, their technicity, the precision needed to score some of the holes, the water challenges, bunkers and bushes. La Bruyère golf course also has a fortified farm, dating back to Villers-la-Ville abbey times. The club's cosy, family-like atmosphere turns visitors into regulars.
