This museum, located in the Belgian province of Luxembourg, is dedicated to the work of sculptor Jean-Marie Gaspar as well the history and heritage of Arlon.

What to expect?

The Gaspar Museum is nestled in a middle-class house in the centre of the town. It takes its name from a local family, whose most well-known members are Jean-Marie Gaspar (1861-1931), a famous animal sculptor, and his brother Charles Gaspar (1871-1950), photographer, collector and patron.

- Two restored staterooms feature bronze and plaster sculptures by Jean Gaspar, as well as collections by Charles Gaspar.
- The museum organises temporary exhibitions dedicated to the art and history of Arlon and its region. It also displays paintings by several artists from the province.

- During your visit, you will also see the famous Fisenne altar, a masterpiece by the early 16th-century Anvers school.
