This village, typical of the Ardennes, is sure to capture your heart with its picturesque houses, made of the local stone and its nearby forest. Redu's sweet little streets, lined with bookshops (new, second hand, comic books, rare editions...) earned it the title of "capital of books" in 1984. No wonder that over 200,000 visitors visit it every year - Wallonia at its most enchanting!

A lively village with events along the year

Redu organises many festivities along the year, all inspired by books: themed fair, a night dedicated to bookshops, an event presenting the many skills used in bookmaking, flea markets, exhibitions...

Museums and terroir products

There are museums, print shops and workshops to discover throughout Redu. The 'Euro Space Center, in Transinne, only is a few kilometres away.

No visit in Wallonia would be complete without a good meal! Make sure to try one of the local restaurants for a delicious time. Some of the shops in town sell product terroirs, a fantastic opportunity to know more about the artisans.

Come and explore Redu, the village dedicated to books in the South of Belgian. An absolute must see in the Ardenne.
