Starting this fall, the University of Mons Museum will host the Exploring the Invisible scientific photography exhibition for a full year.

A journey between science and art

The MUMONS team has embarked on a great adventure: collecting and selecting the most beautiful science images obtained in the University's laboratories, with the intention of exhibiting them as true works of art.

Between scientific research and contemporary art, discover what usually cannot be seen, because it is too small or too far, hidden or too abstract. You will undoubtedly be amazed by these revealed universes, which defy all ordinary perception.

An event accessible to all audiences for one year at the Museum of the University of Mons.
