Young people ages 12 to 20 years old will present their scientific or technical project (hard science, human science, maths, IT....) to the public in Liège.

The aim

- Develop these young people's passion for scientific activities
- Put a positive focus on their work
- Increase the exchange between young people and the public as well as with scientists
- Develop a real research and learning attitude
- Develop methods and techniques to present their findings
- Ask questions, find answers, check them by testing, build a project
