Immerse yourself in the world of the Second World War and visit the stable where the first American officer, Lieutenant Cook, died during the Liberation of Belgium.

The 40-44 Lieutenant Cook Museum retraces the arrival of the troops of the 9th Infantry Division in Cendron and its region through photographs, historical documents, military objects, satirical paintings by Liedel... You will discover the lives of men and women who we earn to be free today.

The museum is currently being renovated, however guided tours in English can occasionally be organized/on request. Please contact the museum for more information and expect something new from January 2024.
